WE ARE RESILIENT

The National Coalition Against Domestic Violence's theme for Domestic Violence Awareness month is #WeAreResilient, a reminder of survivor's resiliency, as well as the collective resiliency of the domestic violence movement.

"The theme was chosen this year in recognition of the particular challenges we have all faced and moved through, but especially those experiencing harm from others and those doing the 'groundwork' to ensure that those who are harmed are supported. It's an opportunity to reflect on the brilliance of the resilience shown by domestic violence victims, survivors, advocates, and other allies as we work towards a national culture where intimate partner violence is not tolerated at any level of society" (NCADV)

We stand by our long tradition of using October to also raise awareness, work with our partners in our collective efforts to support victims, survivors and advocates and work to ensure accountability for those that harm others.

How will you show your resilience?

Thank You
